GRAYLING SCHOOLS TO OPEN TUESDAY

MANY IMPROVEMENTS MADE IN SCHOOL BUILDINGS AND GROUNDS.

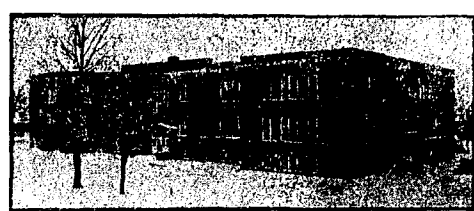

Teachers for All Departments Have Been Provided. A Few New Faces.

The busy throng of school boys and girls will again appear on the streets Tuesday when Grayling schools will be thrown open and inviting invitations extended to all to come and be educated. It is a grand privilege that our town, in common with all places throughout the grand expanse of our land, hold out free school privileges and secure the best instructors that our means can provide for the education of our youths. Millions of dollars are spent annually to educate our boys and girls and those dollars are the grandest investment that any tax payer can have—making better men and women.

The Grayling Board of education have had the school yard greatly improved by building additional cement walks, growing fine lawns and in general giving the yards a fine tuning up. The inside of the structure also has come in for its share of improvement. Every seat in the building has been taken up and cleaned by being given a chemical bath which removed all dirt, stains and varnish, and then have been re-varnished and returned to their places, looking clean and new. The floors have been cleaned and the hall floors oiled, and when school opens Tuesday the teachers and pupils will find everything spick and span and strictly sanitary.

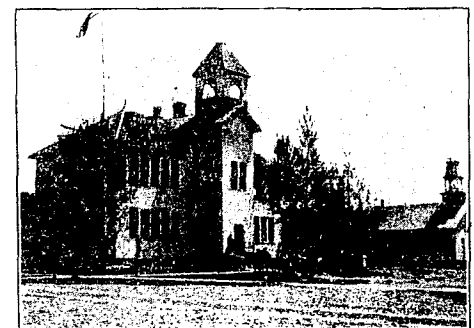

Following are the teachers that have been engaged for the coming school year:

B. E. Smith, Grayling—Supt.
Tressa Fuller, Mears, Mich.—Prim.
Margaret Joseph, Grayling—Mathematics.
Doris Woodward, Clinton—Commercial.
Marion Estabrook, Ionia—Languages.
Elvira Bellows, Frankfort—English.
Irene Gileon, Kalamazoo—History.
Carrie Johnson, Standish—Junior High.
Pearl Haynes, Hillsdale—Junior High.
Bernice Boody, Eaton Rapids—6th grade.
Myrtle Milnes, Grayling—6th grade.
Mildred Hertzler, Glennie—5th grade.
Clara Mox, Kingsley—5th and 4th grades.
Rose Gunville, Carney—4th grade.

GRAYLING CENTRAL SCHOOL.

Mae Richardson, Roscommon—3rd grade.
Donna Lockhoff, Mancelona—2nd grade.
Laura Thompson, Twinning—1st grade.
Helen Geigley, Manistee—Kindergarten.
Helen Parr, Quakertown, Pa.—Music and drawing.
A. W. Morrow, River Fall, Wis.—Physical Training.
South Side.
Josephine Westcott, Detroit, Kindergarten and 1st grade, South Side.
Hazel Abbott, Ludington—2nd and 3rd grades, South Side.

FREDERIC SCHOOL.

Frederic school will open Tuesday, September 6. The faculty for the coming year will be as follows:

John W. Payne, Superintendent
Irma Craven—High School assistant and grade teacher.

MICHELSON MEMORIAL CHURCH.

Sunday, September 4th, services in the morning at ten-thirty followed by Sunday School. Sunday September 11th is the last Sunday of our church year. Two more Sundays this year. Be on hand at both these services for Sunday, September 18th there will be no preaching service—then a rest.

Some one is keeping the children from attending Sunday School. We have a suspicion who it is. But it seems so almost impossible that we will not believe it true until we have it. Some one, however, dared to hint it was the parents! Believe many times about Grayling, but do not think that. Too hot in summer; too cold in winter; too pleasant in autumn, and too wet in spring. Boys and girls became men and women and the church is a joke and the Bible a closed book. They are everywhere.

The Sunday evening services begin Sunday, September 11th. The Thursday evening prayer services are now running. Seventy-three each Thursday night. No matter if but two come we pray.

GRANGE PICNIC SEPT. 3.
Don't forget the Grange picnic at the farm home of L. B. Merrill, Bayver Creek township, Saturday, September 3.

Special features are sports and a dance at the town hall in the evening. Everybody invited. Committee.

The Bay City K. C. base ball team will play the Grayling M. C. team Sunday and Monday, Labor day, Sept. 4-5 at the ball grounds. Game called 3:30 o'clock.

FARMERS' WEEK IN CRAWFORD COUNTY

FARMERS BRING IN FINE SAMPLES FOR STATE FAIR EXHIBIT.

Experimental Farm An Object Lesson to Farmers. All Should Visit Before Frost.

The past week seems to have been Agricultural week in Crawford county. From all directions have come to Grayling quantities of the finest specimens of crops that can be raised anywhere and the lot was one that should gladden the hearts of anyone who could see it.

Agricultural Agent R. D. Bailey sent out the s. o. s. signal for material for an exhibit to be placed at the State Fair at Detroit, beginning Friday, and the response was most wonderful.

The samples were collected at the Agent's office and never have we seen a finer collection or display anywhere. Corn, potatoes, roots, grasses and fruits, were in great abundance. We were unable to obtain a list of the exhibitors, and as the specimens were so universally excellent it would be difficult to mention one without mentioning all. The rooms were packed in every direction with the finest products of Crawford County farms, and would have, in themselves alone, been enough for a whole fair.

All these were carefully packed and shipped to Detroit, where Mr. Bailey, assisted by supervisors Kellogg and Scott are now getting them ready for thousands of people to see, and we doubt if any county in old agricultural Michigan will have a finer display.

In former years our county has joined with the Northeastern Development bureau in offering an exhibit but this year it was decided by our supervisors to make a more liberal display and occupy a booth by ourselves.

Here details in reference to the exhibit are printed herewith in the usual Farm Bureau notes by Mr. Bailey.

Wonderful Sight Awaits Farmers at Experimental Station.

The experimental station, conducted by the M. A. C. near School Section lake, for the benefit of our farmers and others who may be interested, presents an object lesson that should be heartily welcomed.

Here are shown crops of alfalfa, sweet clover, mammoth clover, red clover, Sudan grass, soy beans and sunflowers. These are planted in rows running crosswise with land that has been given various treatments, some treated with lime, some with green or stable manure, some not treated at all and several other processes, better understood by practical agriculturists. Each crop shows plainly which treatment has been most successful and which have been only partly successful and others that have not done well at all. The results stand out like the pages of an open book and are readily understood and comprehended. Thus giving a most conclusive demonstration in the practice of agriculture.

Dr. McCool of the Agricultural college was here last Thursday looking over the exhibit and said he was well pleased with the results. He is specially anxious to have all who are interested in cropping make a trip to the experimental farm and see for themselves the results, combine what they may learn there with the knowledge they already have and thus profit from these efforts that are being made. He wants all to judge for themselves. He suggests the visitors get in touch with Mr. Bailey who will gladly take the time to show them the farm and tell just what has been done there in the raising of the several crops mentioned.

Dr. McCool says that the experimental farm will be continued next year and has the highest hopes of the results that will come from these efforts.

Let every farmer in the county come out and see with his own eyes the results of these various experiments.

Farm Bureau Notes

R. D. BAILEY
County Agricultural Agent

THANK YOU.

We wish to thank most sincerely, the many kind-hearted people, who responded to our appeal to send in material for exhibition at the State Fair. You did splendidly. Many people brought in exhibit material from long distances, and probably at great inconvenience to themselves.

Please be assured friends, that your efforts are appreciated.

We sent an abundant amount of fruit, grains, grasses and roots, to show up the county well.

We sent an abundance of large views of representative scenes throughout the county.

These views comprise agricultural, resort and sporting scenes.

If our agricultural products do not become spoiled by heating in the boxes while in transit; or, damaged by rough handling, we can make a creditable showing.

We take with us a supply of printed matter, setting forth opportunities furnished by Crawford County.

There are vastly greater agricultural opportunities here than have been used.

Few very few, of our farms are speeded up as they should be. The income on most of our farms could be increased.

Let us beware of living in a rut. Let us beware of narrow views. Let us promptly and thoroughly adopt the best of the improved things in agriculture.

This very summer has shown that, if we will be open minded we can do better, even in the matter of raising roughage for our cows.

If a hay shortage seems to be coming we have three unused chances for escape by raising:

Sudan grass, soy beans, Hubam clover.

Some dread and some fight against being jarred out of practices that they have followed for years.

Some would prefer to suffer than to think much on new practices.

Does it pay to have, or to hold to that state of mind.

Many of us have only ourselves to blame for our not getting along better on our farms. Tools left out doors; soil not fed green manure; fields cropped too much; stock in-bred and scrub-bred; low class of seed used; no attention to soil management to save moisture; lack of system; lack of ideals, all help hold us down. All these can be remedied if a man only will. Nearly everyone of us can have what he desires in an agricultural sense. "Not failure but low aim is crime."

Crawford County Experimental Farm.

Why not visit, before frost, and see clovers, alfalfa, soy beans, Hubam clover, etc., growing there.

The head of the department of soils of Michigan Agricultural college visited the farm Thursday, Aug. 25.

He expressed great delight in the appearance of things.

We noticed that, where there was no lime, the clover, sweet clover, alfalfa and the Hubam (annual white sweet clover) nearly failed out.

We noticed that, where the plowing on the new land was just deep enough to get the native sod nicely under, say four inches, there, in that streak of organic or vegetable matter was the most of the root growth; for, there were the moisture and the greater part of the fertility.

We noticed that, where we should very gradually deepen the depth of our plowing, even by quarter inches, so we are able to fill the furrow slice with vegetable matter.

We noticed that, had we cultivated very deep, we should have cut off millions of the fine roots that really do the work of feeding the plants.

HEARTY SOUPS CAN BE USED INSTEAD OF MEAT AT TIMES.

Black bean soup, split pea soup, cream of bean or pea and puree of beans and tomatoes are delicious, inexpensive, and easy to make. Many of these soups are so hearty that they can form the chief dish of a meal, say food specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Soak and cook a pint of peas or beans as usual, but take more water, about 2 quarts, and cook until very soft. Then put them through a sieve. These mashed beans and peas are ready to be made into all kinds of soups by adding the various seasonings, water and milk, or stock enough to make 2 quarts. These soups should all have a little flour added to them as a binder to prevent the thick part from settling to the bottom. Mix thoroughly two tablespoons fat with two tablespoons flour, and a little of the hot soup, and stir until it is smooth, then add to the remaining soup, stirring to prevent lumping, and cook for about 10 minutes.

Black Bean Soup or Split Pea Soup. To the pulp from 1 pint beans or peas, add enough water or stock to make 2 quarts. Thicken with flour as directed. Season with salt and pepper. The juice of a lemon and one-half teaspoon mustard adds to the flavor.

Cream of Bean or Pea Soup.

BASE BALL ON LABOR DAY

ALL SET FOR YE "OLD TIMER" BASE BALL GAME.

Grayling Ex-Premiers Will Play West Branch, Roscommon and Gaylord, Bunched.

After several weeks of delay the proposed "Old timer" base ball game between Grayling and all of the old time players of West Branch, Roscommon and Gaylord, has finally been arranged. It will be played in Grayling base ball park on Labor day, at 2 o'clock.

Grayling, where everybody gets old in experience but keeps young in health, had no trouble in filling the team right here at home. West Branch, that proposed the game, found they did not have players enough so drafted players from Roscommon and Gaylord to fill up the ranks.

Grayling line up of players will be as follows:

Geo. McCullough, pitcher.
Charles McCullough, catcher.
W. J. McNevin, 1st base.
Hoch Hanson, 2nd base.

Sig. Hanson, 3rd base.
Tom Ingle, shortstop.

M. Hanson, left field.

Jim Hartwick, center field.

Carl P. Mickelson, right field.

Subs—O. P. Schumann, Harry E. Simpson, Oscar Hanson, Frank Mickelson and A. M. Lewis.

The official umpires will be Joe Burton and Emil Kraus.

In their balmy days, the McCullough battery was almost invincible and stood many a starry team on their heads with shut-outs. And there are many players on the team who might have worn "Tiger" uniforms had they been discovered during their base ball days. And there are a number of home run artists in the lot and number of broken bickories are anticipated next Monday.

It is hoped that the opposing manager will be able to pick up nine men from the three towns, that will be able to "give us a ball game." Now this promises to be the biggest attraction that has appeared on the local diamond this season, and everybody should plan to be on the grounds when the game begins. There is going to be a fine game and a lot of fun. Come out and root for the home favorites. Watch us knock out three of our old time enemies all at one time. Kill 'em dead.

To the cooked and mashed pulp add enough milk to make 2 quarts of soup. Season and thicken with flour. Puree or Porridge of Beans and Tomatoes.

Instead of milk, tomatoes may be used. Add a cup of canned tomatoes or three medium-sized tomatoes, which have been cooked for 10 minutes and put through a sieve. If the porridge is too thick, add water or stock. Season and add the flour as directed.

Bean or Pea Soup With Meat.

The peas or beans are soaked as usual and cooked with the meat in 4 quarts of water instead of in 2 quarts. Use a soup or ham bone, or one-half pound of salt pork or any smoked meat, and cook until the beans are soft. Remove the meat and put the soup through a sieve. Season and thicken. The cooked meat cut in small pieces may be added to the soup. An onion, several stalks of celery, or soup herbs are good with the soup.

FORMER OLD RESIDENT DIES AS RESULT OF FALL.

A fall down the cellar steps at 8 o'clock last evening resulted in injuries causing death about two o'clock this morning, to Mrs. Henry Trumley. The accident occurred at the home of her son, A. L. Trumley on Shoshone Street, where Mr. and Mrs. Henry Trumley have been making their home for some time. This particular house, however, was just purchased last week and unfamiliarity with the doors and stairways is thought to have been the cause of the accident.

She had been in the bath room but stepped out and then, evidently with the intention of going back into that room she turned and opened the cellar door and pitched down cellar. Fractures of both arms and bruises about the head resulted. As to whether or not there were other injuries sustained was not determined, but owing to her advanced age, being 76 years old, the shock was too great.

Mrs. Elizabeth Trumley was born in Livingston County, Michigan, on Feb. 25, 1845. The family moved to Washington, located at Davenport. In later years she and her husband have been alternating between the homes of their son A. L. Trumley of this city and a daughter, Mrs. Wm. Dickey of Spokane. Another son Elmer Trumley lives at Charlotte, Michigan.

Funeral services will be conducted from the Institutional Church at 7:30 p. m. Friday and the body taken to Spokane on Saturday for interment in Greenwood cemetery. Services will also be held by W. R. C.—The Pasco Herald.

The Trumleys were former well-known and highly respected residents of Grayling, moving to Pasco, Washington, many years ago. The remaining members of the family have the sympathy of their old friends in this place.

FORMER MAJOR LEAGUE PLAYERS NOW LEADING CLASS C-D TEAMS

Glancing over the baseball directory sponsored by John H. Farrell, of the National Association, one is astonished at the number of old timers whose names were once familiar in the major leagues that are managing class C and D teams somewhere in this big land.

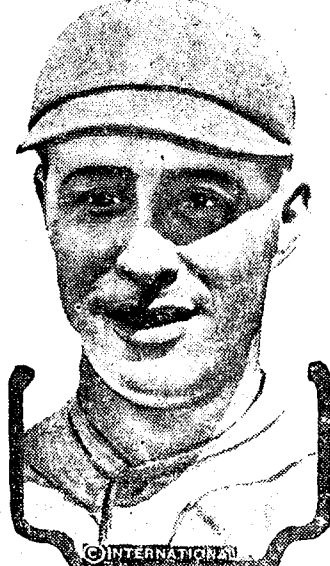

For instance, Rube Hulse is pilot of the Pawhuska team of the Western association; Josh Clarke is manager of the Coffeyville team in the Southwestern league; Tommy Leach is handling the Tampa club in the Florida league, while Joe Tinker is handling Orlando and Cy Barger St. Petersburg in the same sun-stricken circuit; Josh Devore is managing Grand Rapids in the Central circuit; Chief Bender is in charge of New Haven in the Eastern league, and Larry Cheney is boss of players at Charleston in the South Atlantic league. So the story goes.

FRENCH LEARN BASEBALL

A French baseball nine trimmed a United States navy team at the Bois de Boulogne recently by a score of 12 to 11. It is said that they displayed plenty of "pep," dash and daring on the bases. They hit well, but use a chop stroke, without swinging through. This is said to have been the first game ever played in France between French and American teams.

ROOM FOR "KNOT HOLE GANG"

As Result of Increased Attendance by Boys Under 16 Years Old Quarters Are Short.

Larger quarters at Sportsmen's park have been turned over to the "Knot Hole Gang" as a result of increased attendance by boys under 16 years old, who are admitted free to National league games played in St. Louis. The boys have been given a section of the left field pavilion in addition to the section of the right field bleachers given them when the "gang" was organized several years ago.

By obtaining the additional section, the organization has surrendered its privilege of seeing games on Saturdays. Good morals and school grades are prime requisites for membership in the organization.

TAKE TIME TO CONSIDER

Coach Beakle of Penn State thinks no football rule should be changed without having a year's consideration. Most football coaches are not so hot over the kick for gold after touch-down as some critics of the country appear to be. As Beakle says: "We can always develop somebody to kick the goals."

HOME HAS TWO BIG FEATURES

Strength and Comfort the Aim in Designing This House.

HALF TIMBER AND STUCCO

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, to the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 157, Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose a recent stamp for reply.

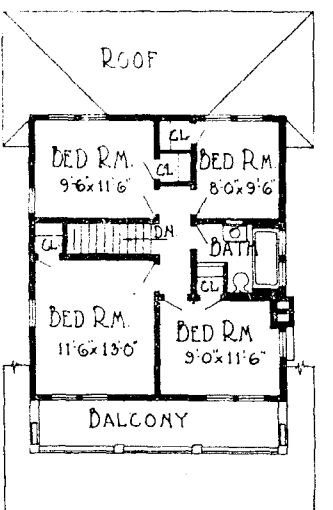

To most of the people the selection of a house design and the details of the construction is one of the most important events in their whole lives. For the average man does not intend to build more than one home during that time and he wants, if possible, to have a home for his children when he passes into the Great Beyond. In the planning of this new home there are many factors to be considered, but the two important considerations are durability and comfort. A home possessing these two qualities is bound to prove successful. Too many home builders have overlooked the basic foundations of a real home in their zeal to get something fresh and different. They wanted a show place, and as a result lost sight of the true character of the home. A few years later they have regretted their action for the so-called show place was merely a shell and soon became the worse for wear and tear. It is only logical and sensible that the man of moderate means should try to get the best there is for his money. It can be attractive, too, and strong. Today in popular features of the English home, for instance, the half-timber effect above the first floor, the rough texture finish stucco, the broad substantial flue indicating a cheerful fireplace in a large living room, and the wide sweeping gable roof.

One of the most appealing features is the broad front porch extending across the front of the house, screened in from insects and pests, a wonderful room in the "dog days" and an excellent sleeping porch. A long roof dormer breaks up the great sweep of the eaves and provides windows for the bedrooms upstairs. Running along this roof dormer in front of the bedrooms is a small balcony with very artistically designed balcony rail.

Stepping inside, the visitor finds himself in the main room of the house, a wonderfully spacious living room 13 by 23 feet 6 inches, easily as big as two ordinary rooms. At one side is the open brick fireplace that "burns" Windows on three sides, this room extends across the entire dwelling, provides excellent light and ventilation and adds to the cheerfulness and comfort of this room.

At the right to the rear is an open doorway leading into the dining room, a room of good size lighted by a triple the huge cities we are continually confronted with glaring examples of fading in home building—row after row of "cellulose-boxes" that were put up to catch the unwary.

Second Floor Plan.

First Floor Plan.

But in building a home like the one shown here, the average man of means cannot make any mistake, for it embodies the two important features, strength and comfort. It is evident that charm has not been sacrificed in any way to gain this result. In fact the exterior is very attractive and enhanced by some architectural touches that make it very appealing and striking. It has borrowed some of the window and opening into the sun parlor at the rear through two doors. This sun parlor can be used as a sleeping porch. It is gazed in. A swinging door on the left opens into the kitchen from the dining room. This kitchen is what architects are now putting in modern homes. It is a small room, quite compact but complete, and because of its size a saving of steps for the housewife. It is the sensible success of this kitchen, the large kitchen, which was two or three times too big for its purpose, and only a cause for much extra work.

In back of the kitchen is a small washroom, in city homes used as a laundry. In farm homes as a cleaning up place for the help returning from the fields. It keeps this dirt out of the kitchen and bathroom.

On the second floor are the sleeping quarters, consisting of four bedrooms of average size, each room having ample closet space and windows on two sides. In the construction of a home, the number and size of windows is quite important. Especially is this true of bedrooms or any place where people sleep. They require plenty of fresh air through the night, and this can only be gotten by windows carefully placed.

A roof dormer at the rear of the house provides windows for the rear bedrooms.

A unique feature of this house is the garage at the rear adjoining the house. Instead of being built on the terrace, as is the house, it is built on a level with the walk and reached by a concrete driveway with high concrete walls, semi-tunnel style. It is built of frame and will hold two cars.

ONCE GREAT INDOOR SPORT

Roller Skating Was at the Height of Its Popularity in This Country in the '80's.

The roller skate was patented in France as early as 1819. Since that time scarcely a year has passed without the recording of some improvement. Phippen's improvement consisted in so gearing two pairs of wheels that they would "cramp" when the footplate was wanted to either side, and thus cause the skate to move on a curved line. Several years elapsed before the value of this invention was recognized generally. In the meantime the inventor was busy making improvements and taking out other patents and in 1874 had brought the skate practically to its present condition.

The device of "cramping" the wheels secured the initial success of roller skating. The earlier inventions were crude affairs compared with the modern appliances. About 1894 the machine for roller skating appeared in England. Two years later the "rinking" fever

Soviet Misrule.

According to a statement in the Soviet press, credited to the Bolshevik economic council, the acute shortage of fuel last winter had resulted, up to the middle of April, in the forced shutting down of four chemical factories, four match factories, 12 glass-making establishments and 13 paper mills.

The schedule for daily production of coal in the Don basin during February was 438 carloads, but the actual daily production, according to the Soviet press statement, was 240 carloads (probably ten tons to the car). As a result the railways received only half their scheduled amounts and some lines were forced to suspend traffic.

Russia's "Wild East"

A Citizen of Siberia.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

A sled drawn over the deep snow by terrified horses, a driver wildly beating them, and a pack of ferocious wolves breaking in pursuit from a dark pine forest—this is a picture that has given many a person a faulty idea of the Siberia of today.

An American woman who had laughed at an Englishman when he complained that during his ten days in New York city he had not seen a single Indian asked upon her arrival in Vladivostok if there was any danger from wolves in the city. As a matter of fact, one may spend a considerable time in Siberia and cover large areas without seeing a wolf, or a pine tree, and what little snow he will see will probably not be more than a few inches deep, though there are sections where it is quite deep. And one may meet thousands of people without seeing either exile or criminal.

One is not likely to be disillusioned about the climate. The American soldier said, "Siberia has two seasons—July and winter." This is nearly true, for there is practically no spring; the foliage does not appear until June, July is as warm as the winter is cold. The brief fall is beautiful indeed, and there is something very thrilling about the intense cold of the winter, when the temperature goes to 60 and 70 degrees below zero in some sections.

Everybody dresses and prepares for the cold, and on the whole it is possible to be more comfortable in the steady winter of Siberia than in the changeable American winter.

Beautiful Wild Flowers.

Siberia's wild flowers—a feature which does not fit into the picture of a frozen wastes—are worthy a volume in themselves. There is a wild rose that blooms lazily on big, sturdy bushes. Then there is the mauve and gold of the "Mary and John" that is loved most by the Siberians. This lovely flower is named after the Virgin Mary and the loved disciple.

Siberia is, above all, an oriental country. One there the traveler sees every phantasmagoria associated with the East. Oriental sunsets, equal to any and inferior to none, thrill the senses with splendors of color ranging from volcans of rubies to the myriad mysteries of the kaleidoscope. Then one sees all the peoples of the Orient—Chinese, Japanese, Tartars, Manchus, Koreans—and women of every color and condition.

For the most part the Russians have Russified the country. Even so one could easily believe the Tower of Babel had been to have occurred in Siberia, for one hears so many different national customs, Chinese "samsaras" and Japanese "dresses" ride the roadstead of Vladivostok along with Russian craft and American motorists, and on the highways, and caravan routes camels and oxen are passed by modern automobiles, mostly of American make.

Native Life Fascinating. One gets wonderfully attracted to Siberian life. There is something charming and fascinating about it. The natives, in spite of the scourges of typhus and cholera, in spite of the hunger and cold which they have experienced so frequently during the last six years, are devoted to their home land; yet apparently they are indifferent to the rich opportunities of their country.

Siberia is a land of rich agricultural potentialities. In spite of the shortness of the summer season, and even American tables have been served with Siberian cheese and butter. But the most alluring opportunities of the country are presented in its mineral wealth—gold and silver and precious stones.

There is so much in Siberia that reminds an American of our "Wild West" of earlier days, whether it be lawlessness, freedom, opportunity, a place to live life over again, great distances, vastness and gloriousness of scenery, or barrenness such as is seen on the Gobi desert, where the camels graze.

And there are many features that may be described in typical American superlatives. Vladivostok has the finest harbor in the world; the railroad connecting Vladivostok with Petrograd is the longest in the world—thus the Siberians rave, and not altogether justly. But they cannot rave about their roads. The Russian word, "dorojka," meaning "road," literally means "bad road," and it would be redundant to speak of a bad "dorojka." It merely means a place where you may get through.

Cities Handsome but Dirty.

The cities of the Russian "Wild East" are not very populous, but each one boasts of sufficient beautiful churches, government and private edifices to give it a noble aspect. First is Vladivostok, a combination of Gotham and Chicago. At the other end of the country is Omsk, the capital. In between and top and bottom are Tomsk, Ekaterinburg, Chita, Chita, Khabarovsk, Irkutsk, Harbin and Nihil. One of the most objectionable features about these beautiful cities is their filth and the attendant odors.

Tomsk has an unusually beautiful cathedral and a great university that has produced more than one famous name, Mendeleeff, the great bacteriologist, being one of them.

Vladivostok, the largest and most interesting city of eastern Siberia, owes much to Russia's loss of Port Arthur, for that unfortunate increased the tsar's interest in the more northerly support until he had made it worthy of its name, "Ruler of the East." The one disadvantage of Vladivostok is that its harbor is frozen during several months of the year. In spite of this drawback, Vladivostok probably possesses the second finest harbor in the world, and it is claimed that from a military standpoint the city was second only to the Dardanelles.

The city spreads out at the foot of many hills and rises into a beautiful and sudden spectacle as one's steamer makes a turn in the approach from the sea. A cathedral with many golden domes occupies a place of vantage, and everywhere rise huge stone and brick barracks, mostly white, with an occasional pile in red brick for contrast.

All around the city are barracks, barracks everywhere. It is said that there are sufficient barracks in and around Vladivostok to house an army of half a million men. The barracks are substantially built and provide protection against the heat of July as well as the cold of winter.

The outstanding characteristics of the Siberian Russian are his physical strength and stamina and his gentleness of nature. Most people will be surprised at the second part of that statement, on account of what has been published about the Bolshevik cruelties. It is true that the peasant went from the extreme of an absolute monarchy to the most fantastic socialism the world has known. Nevertheless he is gentle and forgiving by nature.

Of course, Siberia did not taste the full bitterness of Red Bolshevism. The extreme elements were present, but they never had full swing. Red Bolshevism in Siberia never was more than "pink," and that pink is becoming paler every day.

OLD ORDER CHANGETH.

Going "upstairs to bed" may become a thing of the past with some people. In the experience of one British officer, is generally imitated. Air Commodore E. N. Matfield, flying over Cardington in the stillness of night, suddenly remembered that there would be a meeting which he was to attend the next morning; so, waving good-bye to his companion, he casually dropped, with a parachute, to the vicinity of the royal aviation hangar. "Can I get a bed here?" he asked of the astonished night watchman, adding, apologetically, "The only way to get here in time was to jump right off." Shall it, then, be "jump off to bed," or "drop down to bed," in the not distant future?

Acting Natural.

We are told we should act natural and do natural things. An Atchison man says he started out to do things that seemed natural to him, but that he landed in the penitentiary.—Atchison Globe.

NOW HE BELONGS TO THE AGES—STANTON

"A Man for the Ages" is Abraham Lincoln. The book is fiction dealing with fact—history in the guise of fiction. It is an intimate study of Abraham Lincoln during his formative period at New Salem, Ill. It tells the chapter in his life that no man can read without smiles and tears and wonder.

Abraham Lincoln arrived at New Salem in 1831, "a stranger, a friendless, uneducated, penniless boy, working on a flat boat for $10 a month," as he himself put it. In 1837 he left to take up his law practice in Springfield. In those six years he transformed himself to a man of acknowledged ability, of promise, of more than local reputation. It was at New Salem that he earned the nickname of "Honest Abe," that he was defeated for the legislature and elected; that he won and lost by death Ann Rutledge.

Irving Bacheller is one of the very few men who could write such a book. His work is well known. This will add to his fame.

CHAPTER I.

Which Describes the Journey of Samson Traylor and His Wife and Their Two Children and Their Dog Sambo Through the Adirondack Wilderness in 1831 on Their Way to the Land of Plenty—Furthermore It Describes the Soaping of the Brimsteeds.

In the early summer of 1831 Samson Traylor and his wife, Sarah, and two children left their old home near the village of Vergennes, Vermont, and began their travels toward the setting sun with four chairs, a broad board and rolling-pin, a feather bed and blankets, a small looking-glass, a skillet, an ax, a pack basket with a pad of sole leather on the same, a water pail, a box of dishes, a tub of salt pork, a rifle, a teapot, a sack of meal, sundry small provisions and a violin. In a double wagon drawn by oxen. It is a pleasure to note that they had a violin and were not disposed to part with it. The reader must not overlook its full historic significance. The stern, uncompromising spirit of the Puritan had left the house of the Yankee before a violin could enter it. Humor and the love of play had preceded and cleared a way for it. Where there was a fiddle there were cheerful hearts. A young black shepherd dog with tawny points and the name of Sambo followed the wagon.

If we had been at the Congregational church on Sunday we might have heard the minister saying to Samson, after the service, that it was hard to understand why the happiest family in the parish and the most beloved should be leaving its ancestral home to go to a far, new country of which little was known. We might also have heard Samson answer:

"It's awful easy to be happy here. We slide along in the same old groove, that our fathers traveled, from Vergennes to Paradise. We work and play and go to meetin' and put a shingle plaster in the box and grow old and narrow and stingy and mean and go up to glory and are turned into saints and angels. Maybe that's the best thing that could happen to us, but Sarah and I kind of thought we'd try a new starting place and another route to heaven."

Sarah and Samson had been raised on adjoining farms just out of the village. He had had little schooling, but his mind was active and well inclined. Sarah had prosperous relatives in Boston and had had the advantage of a year's schooling in that city. She was a comely girl of a taste and refinement unusual in the place and time of her birth. Many well-favored youths had sought her hand, but, better than others, she liked the big, masterful, good-natured, humorous Samson, crude as he was. Naturally in her hands his timber had undergone some planing and smoothing and his thoughts had been gently led into new and pleasant ways.

Let us take a look at them as they slowly leave the village of their birth. The wagon is covered with tent cloth drawn over hickory arches. They are sitting on a seat overlooking the oxen in the wagon front. Tears are streaming down the face of the woman. The man's head is bent. His elbows are resting on his knees; the hickory handle of his ox whip lies across his lap, the lash at his feet. He seems to be looking down at his boots, into the tops of which his trousers have been folded. He is a rugged, blond, bearded man with kindly blue eyes and a rather prominent nose. There is a striking expression of power in the head and shoulders of Samson Traylor. The breadth of his back, the size of his wrists and hands, the color of his face betoken a man of great strength. This thoughtful, sorrowful, attitude is the only evidence of emotion which he betrays. In a few minutes he begins to whistle a lively tune.

The boy Josiah—familiarly called Joe—sits beside his mother. He is a slender, sweet-faced lad. He is looking up wistfully at his mother. The little girl Betsey sits between him and her father.

That evening they stopped at the house of an old friend some miles up the rustic road to the north.

"Here we are—good! west," Samson shouted to the man at the door-step.

He alighted and helped his family out of the wagon.

"You go right in—I'll take care of the oxen," said the man.

Samson started for the house with the girl under one arm and the boy under the other. A pleasant-faced woman greeted them with a hearty welcome at the door.

"You poor man! Come right in," she said.

"Poor! I'm the richest man in the world," said he. "Look at the gold on that girl's head—curly, fine gold, too—the best there is. She's Betsey—" my little toy woman—half past seven years old—blue eyes—helps her mother get tired every day. Here's my toy man Josiah—yes, brown hair and brown eyes like Sarah—heart of gold—helps his mother, too—six times one year old."

"What pretty faces!" said the woman as she stooped and kissed them. "Yes, ma'am. Got 'em from the fairies," Samson went on. "They have all kinds of heads for little folks, an' I guess they color 'em up with the blood of roses an' the gold of buttercups an' the blue of violets. Here's this wife of mine. She's rich in I am. She owns all of us. We're her slaves."

"Looks as young as she did the day she was married—nine years ago," said the woman.

"Exactly!" Samson exclaimed. "Straight as an arrow and proud! I don't blame her. She's got enough to make her proud. I say, I fall in love again every time I look into her big, brown eyes."

They had a joyous evening and a restful night with these old friends and resumed their journey soon after daylight. They ferried across the lake at Burlington and fared away over the mountains and through the deep forest on the Chateaugay trail. Since the pilgrims landed between the measureless waters and the pathless wilderness they and their descendants had been surrounded by the lure of mystery. The love of adventure, the desire to explore the dark, infested and beautiful forest, the dream of fruitful sunny lands cut with water courses, shored with silver and strewn with gold beyond it—these were the only heritage of their sons and daughters save the strength and courage of the pioneer. How true was this dream of theirs gathering detail and allurement as it passed from sire to son. On distant plains to the west were lands more lovely and fruitful than any of their vision; in mountains far beyond was gold enough to gild the dome of the heavens, as the sun was wont to do at eventide, and silver enough to put a fairly respectable moon in it. Yet for generations their eyes were not to see, their hands were not to touch, these things. They were only to push their frontier a little farther to the west and hold the dream and pass it on to their children.

Those early years of the Nineteenth century held the first days of fulfillment. Samson and Sarah Traylor had the dream in their hearts when they first turned their faces to the west. For years Sarah had resisted it, thinking of the hardships and perils in the way of the move. Samson, a man of twenty-nine when he set out from his old home, was said to be "always chasing the bird in the bush." He was never content with the thing in hand. There were certain of their friends who promised to come and join them when, at last, they should have found the land of plenty. But most of the group that bade them good-by thought it a foolish enterprise and spoke lightly of Samson when they were gone. America has undervalued the brave souls who went west in wagons, without whose sublime courage and endurance the plains would still be an unplowed wilderness. Often we hear them set down as seedy, shiftless dreamers who could not make a living at home. They were mostly the best blood of the world and the noblest of God's missionaries. Who does not honor them above the thrifty, comfort-loving men and women who preferred to stay at home, where risks were few, the supply of food sure and sufficient and the consolations of friendship and religion always at hand? Samson and Sarah preferred to enlist and take their places in the front battle line of civilization.

They had read a little book called "The Country of the Sangamon." The latter was a word of the Pottawatomies meaning land of plenty. It was the name of a river in Illinois draining boundless, flowery meadows of unexampled beauty and fertility, bordered with timber, blessed with shady groves, covered with game and mostly level, without a stick or a stone to vex the plowman. Thither they were bound, to take up a section of government land.

They stopped for a visit with Ellisha Howard and his wife, old friends of theirs, who lived in the village of Malone, which was in Franklin county, New York. There they traded their oxen for a team of horses. They were large gray horses named Pete and Colonel. The latter was fat and good-natured. His chief interest in life was food. Pete was always looking for food and perils. Colonel was the near horse. Now and then Samson threw a sheepskin over his back and put the boy on it and tramped along within arm's reach of Joe's left leg. This was a great delight to the little lad.

They proceeded at a better pace to the Black River country, toward which, in the village of Canton, they turned again for a visit with Captain Moody and Miss Wright, both of whom had taught school in the town of Vergennes.

They proceeded through DeKalb, Richville and Gouverneur and Antwerp and on to the Sand plains. They had gone far out of their way for a look at these old friends of theirs.

Samson's diary tells how, at the top of the long, steep hills he used to cut a small tree by the roadside and tie its butt to the rear axle and hang on to its branches while his wife drove the team. This held their load, making an effective brake.

Traveling through the forest, as they had been doing for weeks, while the day waned, they looked for a brookside on which they could pass the night with water handy. Samson tethered, fed and watered their horses and while Sarah and the children built a fire and made tea and biscuits, he was getting bait and catching fish in the stream.

"In a few minutes from the time I wet my hook a mess of trout would be dressed and sizzling, with a piece of salt pork, in the pan, or it was a bad day for fishing," he writes.

After supper the wagon was partly unloaded, the feather bed laid upon the planks under the wagon roof and spread with blankets. Then Samson sang songs and told stories or played upon the violin to amuse the family.

Often if the others were weary and depressed he would dance merrily around the fire, playing a lively tune, with Sambo glad to lend a helping foot and much noise to the program. By and by the violin was put away and all knelt by the fire while Sarah prayed aloud for protection through the night. So it will be seen that they carried with them their own little theater, church and hotel.

Soon after darkness fell, Sarah and the children lay down for the night, while Samson stretched out with his blanket by the fire in good weather, the loaded musket and the dog Sambo lying beside him. Often the howling of wolves in the distant forest kept them awake, and the dog muttering and barking for hours.

Samson woke the camp at daylight and a merry song was his reveille while he led the horses to their drink.

When they set out in the morning Samson was wont to say to the little lad, who generally sat beside him:

"Well, my boy, what's the good word this morning? Whereupon Joe would say, parrot like:

"God help us all and make His face to shine upon us."

"Well said!" his father would answer, and so the day's journey began.

Often, near its end, they came to some lonely farmhouse. Always Samson would stop and go to the door to ask about the roads, followed by little Joe and Betsey with secret hopes. One of these hopes was related to bread and had been cherished since an hour of good fortune early in the trip and encouraged by sundry good-hearted women along the road. Another was the hope of seeing a baby—mainly, it should be said, the hope of Betsey. Joe's interest was merely an echo of hers. He regarded babies with an open mind, as it were, for the opinions of his sister still had some weight with him, she being a year and a half older than he, but babies invariably disappointed him, their capabilities being so restricted. Still, not knowing what might happen, he always took a look at every baby.

The children were lifted out of the wagon to stretch their legs at sloughs and houses. They were sure to be close behind the legs of their father when he stood at a stranger's door. Then, the night being near, they were always invited to put their horses in the barn and tarry until next morning. This was due in part to the wistful faces of the little children—a fact unsuspected by their parents. What motherly heart could resist the silent appeal of children's faces or fail to understand it? Those were memorable nights for Sarah and Joe and Betsey. In a letter to her brother the woman said:

"You don't know how good it seems to see a woman and talk to her, and we talked and talked until midnight, after all the rest were asleep. She let me hold the baby in my lap until it was put to bed. How good it felt to have a little warm body in my arms again and feel it breathing! In all my life I never saw a prettier baby. It felt good to be in a real house and sleep in a soft, warm bed and to eat jolly and cookies and bread and butter and potatoes and meat and butter. Samson played for them and kept them laughing with his stories until bedtime. They wouldn't take a cent and gave us a dozen eggs in a basket and a piece of venison when we went away."

On a warm, bright day in the sand country they came to a crude, half finished, frame house at the edge of a wide clearing. The sand lay in drifts on one side of the road. It had evidently moved in the last wind. A sickly vegetation covered the field. A ragged, barefooted man and three sawing, ill-clad children stood in the doorway. It was noontime. A mongrel dog, with a bit of the hound in him, came bounding and barking toward the wagon and pitched upon Sambo and quickly got the worst of it. Sambo, after much experience in self-defense, had learned that the best way out of such trouble was to seize a leg and hang on. This he did. The mongrel began to yelp. Samson, lifted both dogs by the backs of their necks, broke the hold of Sambo and tossed aside the mongrel, who ran away whining.

"That reminded me of a bull that tackled a man over in Vermont," he said. "The man had a club in his hand. He dodged and grabbed the bull's tail and beat him all over the lot. As the bull roared, the man hollered: 'I'd like to know who began his fuss anyway!'"

The stranger laughed. "Is that your house?" Samson said. The man stepped nearer and answered in a low, confidential tone: "Say, mister, this is a combination poorhouse and idiot asylum. I am the idiot. These are the poor."

He pointed to the children.

"You don't talk like an idiot," said Samson.

SNAGS IN LIFE'S CURRENT

Are Something That It Is the Part of Wisdom for All of Us to Avoid.

A young woman in a rage with her fiancé for some apparently inexcusable oversight, exclaimed: "I never can forgive him—never." Her grandmother, sitting near, looked up from her knitting. "I felt the same way one day nearly 50 years ago," she said quietly. "Today I cannot recall what it was I could not forgive, but the emptiness of life that resulted is still in my mind. Don't get hung up on a snag in the stream, my dear. Snags alone are not so dangerous—it's the debris that clings to them that makes the trouble. Pull yourself loose and go on."

In our judgment we must first get rid of the eternal self; we must learn to look at the fault wholly in its relation to the person to whom it belongs, not in its relation to ourselves. None of us is created perfect, and few—if any—attain perfection. The most we can attain is a perfect understanding of this fact, and a self-control that will enable us to pull loose from the snag and go on with the main stream of the life which in other respects is in harmony with ours; not stay hung up, emphasizing the snag and giving it more weight than the stream itself. To be able to ignore is often the most saving of grace—Anne Shannon Monroe in Good Housekeeping.

Nation Without Language.

One of the strangest things to be found among the nations of the world is the fact that Switzerland has no language of its own. The official languages of Switzerland are French, Italian and German, all three being recognized as the "mother tongue" of the majority of the inhabitants.

A majority of the people speak German, while the others use French and Italian, varying as a rule, according to the proximity of the people to each country whose tongue they speak.

Public documents and notices are printed in both the French and German languages.

In the Swiss national parliament the members make their speeches either in French or German, the members being as familiar with one language as the other.

Statements from the President of Switzerland are furnished to the newspapers in both languages.

Efficient Spending. The measure of real necessity is surprisingly small. When one finds the medium ground between prodigality and stinginess he will realize that he can live there, even though his income may be moderate. Greater moderation in many things would leave us a healthier and happier race, to say nothing of what it would do for our bank accounts. Certainly, before buying a thing one should honestly ask himself whether he needs it. He should, likewise, give himself an honest answer.

The second principle of efficient spending is that when one has honestly decided that he needs a thing he should buy the best he can get. If one buys at all, it pays to search the market for an article of high quality. Moreover, he is very apt not to find an article of high grade unless he does search the market rather carefully.

DAD DY TA E DAIRY

CHOOSING BREED OF CATTLE

Market for Dairy Products, Climatic and Other Conditions Have Important Bearing.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In selecting the breed of dairy cattle suited for his particular locality, the farmer should give close consideration of two sources of income from this kind of stock, say specialists of the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture. One part of the income is represented by the sale of products, either milk or butterfat; and the other comes from the sale of surplus stock. Often the latter may amount to a considerable sum, even though the herd is composed of grade animals.

Another point that he should bear in mind is that no single breed is altogether superior to all others; it may excel in certain features, but not in all. It is best, therefore, to select the breed which comes the nearest to meeting the necessary conditions.

Most of the milk sold in towns and cities is subject to certain requirements as to quality, among which are standards for the butter fat and milk solids. For much milk, payment is based upon quantity by weight, without special reference to any butter-fat content above the legal standard. Local requirements differ greatly as to the content of butter fat and solids.

Consumers, as a rule, much prefer milk of a deep, rich color, which usually is considered to be an indication of a large cream content. A distinct and deep cream line in the milk bottle is another feature by which the quality of milk is judged. Although generally the consumer does not want to pay more for a better quality of product, occasionally it is possible to create a demand for rich milk at a higher price.

Very often the benefits of co-operative effort are lost through the exercise of an inborn spirit of independence. Consequently, it frequently happens that in the selection of a breed no consideration is given to the fact that another breed already may be established in the locality. The predominance of a certain breed in a community offers many advantages.

Where There Is One Breed in Community It Is Easier to Dispose of the Surplus Stock.

A market is established which, because of the availability of large numbers of animals, attracts those who buy large consignments. Under such circumstances all surplus stock may be disposed of to better advantage, and co-operative advertising also may be used effectively. In addition, bulls may be bought co-operatively or exchanged with facility, thus very materially reducing the cost of service in the herd.

Any necessary additions to the herd can be obtained, without expense for travel, from neighbors' herds with whose history the buyer is thoroughly familiar. These advantages apply not only to the breeder of purebred cattle, but also to the owners of grades.

In this country there is a very wide range of conditions, as to both topography and climate. On rich, level pastures all breeds thrive, but on rough, hilly land, where pasturage is scant, they do not show equal adaptability. In the extreme cold of the North, with its long winters, different resisting qualities are needed as compared with the almost tropical heat in the southern parts of the country.

In the United States four breeds of dairy cattle have attained considerable prominence, namely the Ayrshire, Guernsey, Holstein-Friesian and Jersey.

These breeds have been developed carefully for a long time for the purpose of dairy production, and in consequence each transmits its characteristics with regularity to its offspring. Certain distinct features distinguish each breed from the others, but all possess ability as milk producers. There is, of course, considerable variation in the characteristics of individuals within each breed.

GRAIN MIXTURE FOR CALVES

Equal Parts of Cornmeal, Ground Oats and Wheat Bran is Good for Young Animals.

A good grain mixture for the young calves is equal parts of cornmeal, ground oats and wheat bran. To start the calf on grain, sprinkle a small amount in the bucket after he has finished his milk. There is no danger of over-feeding him on grain, and he should be given all that he will eat.

Is greatly relieved by constitutional treatment. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system, thus reducing the inflammation and assisting Nature in restoring normal conditions.

GRAYLING, THURSDAY, SEPT. 1.

TODAY closes the trout fishing season for this year. The streams have been busy places this season especially during the months of May, June and August. July was too hot for the average fisherman and he preferred to remain in the comfortable confines of his cottage or club house. General reports coming from all parts of the state indicate that trout fishing has not been as good this season as last, due probably to many reasons. For one thing the extremely hot days of July seemed to take the "pep" out of the trout just as it did out of the average person and, no matter what kind of a trout fly was used the catches were just about half the usual average. Another thing must be considered and that is the tremendous increase of visitors to the trout streams. The automobile has more than doubled the increase in fisherman. The AuSable and its branches in this county, which are undisputedly the grandest trout streams in Michigan, if not in America, are the great magnet that attract people to come here for sport and recreation, and annually the number of visitors have increased. This means that if Michigan is to conserve the wealth of her streams she must increase her efforts in trout propagation. More real honest to goodness trout hatcheries must be established or, what would be better still, enlarge the capacities of the hatcheries already in operation; provide more growing ponds and then finally see that the trout fry are planted by persons who know how to plant them where they can grow and develop. In this latter matter there is tremendous waste, and often the finest efforts of the hatcheries are lost. Small fry are sometimes dumped out of cans into ice cold water and the sudden change is too much for them and many die. Also some are turned out into pools where big brook and rainbow trout are watching for food and the unsophisticated hatchery trout fry is an easy victim. More pond room at the hatcheries will allow the fry to be held at the hatcheries for longer periods and thus larger and stronger fry can be planted instead of the tiny speck that some times are sent out by some of the hatcheries. Further the legislature should cut down the limit of a day's catch to at least not more than 20, that is enough for anyone. And also the murderous trout spinner should be ruled from the streams.

THE STATE BOARD of equalization has placed the valuation of Crawford county at $3,148,000, which is $52,000 less than in 1919. It may well be assumed that this reduction was not brot about without some determined effort on the part of officials and representatives from our county. Wayne county, which is assessed for about half the valuation of the entire state, had had representatives out among the counties thruout the state and when the state tax commission met in Lansing last month they had Crawford slated with a valuation of nine million dollars and did everything in their power to put it thru. The State commission had us placed at $4,234,000. Supervisor M. A. Bates and O. P. Barnes had been appointed by the Board of supervisors to represent Crawford county at Lansing. At the time of the meeting Mr. Bates was unable to get away and forwarded his information to Mr. Barnes, who appeared before the State Board and claimed a reduction from the assessment of 1919. This brot on considerable opposition but Mr. Barnes was able to prove his claims to the satisfaction of the State Board and thus able to reduce our valuation. This means a lot more to the tax payers of Crawford county than it may appear on the surface. Besides reducing the amount of state taxes we would have to pay it also keeps us in the class of counties that pay 7 1/2% of the cost of highway construction and 15% in cost of highway maintenance. Had the valuation been raised to $4,234,000 we would have had to pay 10% and 20% respectively on these costs. It means that we save one third on our road expenses. Anyone paying taxes knows that this means a lot to them in dollars and cents. We feel that this is only as it should be yet it could easily have been different had we failed to prove to the State Board of equalization with facts and figures the true status of our valuation.

Next Sunday and Monday—Labor Day, the K. of C. base ball team of Bay City will play the M. C. team on the local diamond. The fastest games of the season are looked for. This is the second time this season this aggregation has played in Grayling. It is fresh in our memory how at that time on the first day they defeated us 14-0 and on the second day 4-2. We must have revenge, so look for fast games. On Labor day the "Old-timers" game will be played previous to the M. C.—K. C. game. The time of the first game is 2:00 o'clock.

Jerry LaMotte, who just retired from running the New Russell hotel, went to Detroit last week and brot back a fine big auto. Last Sunday he invited a party of friends to take a ride and wishing to have them see what the car could do, stepped on the gas while driving north on Ogema street and when he reached the turn at the Hatchery park was traveling so fast that he lost control and the pesky thing turned turtle. There were four in the car but luck was with them and only one was hurt and he only had a bad scalp wound. One wheel of the car was broken.

Has Written an Epochal Story

Irving Bacheller

The voice of the conscience of the nation speaks in the work of 'A Man of the Ages', his great narrative of the growth of democracy in which Abraham Lincoln is the chief character, who has written his best and biggest, most compelling novel. A wonderful theme in which others might have failed. Mr. Bacheller has succeeded because of his familiarity with the fundamentals of American life—American life as it is exemplified by the makers of America. It is the most inspiring picture of Lincoln and of the times beginning somewhat before the middle of the last century and extending to about 1860, that has ever been painted. Aside from its interest as a novel and its value as a document of Americanism, it is a distinct contribution to literature embodying human nature and human interest. 'A Man of the Ages' will soon start as a serial in this paper and you are exhorted not to miss a line of it.

SOUR MILK BISCUITS CAN BE MADE WITH CORN MEAL.

Almost every one likes sour-milk biscuits. Those made with corn meal may be new to some house-keepers.

Corn-Meal Biscuits.

1 1/2 cups corn meal.
2 cups sour milk.
1 teaspoon soda.
1 tablespoon fat.
1 teaspoon salt.
2 eggs.
1 tablespoon water.

Heat together the corn meal, sour milk, fat, and salt in a double boiler for 10 minutes. When cool, add the well-beaten eggs and the soda dissolved in the water. Bake in small pans that will give a large amount of crust. The kind used for "finger" rolls is best.

Buckwheat Can Be Used in Quick Bread.

Not all buckwheat cakes are made on the griddle. This is good if served hot.

Buckwheat Breakfast Cake.
2 cups buckwheat flour.
1/4 cup shortening.
1/2 teaspoon salt.
2 cups sour milk.
1 teaspoon soda.

LET'S GET BETTER ACQUAINTED AND WORK TOGETHER FOR BETTER FARMING AND INCREASED INCOME.

The County Agent's office is over the postoffice in Grayling. He is always there Saturdays, so farmers can find him. The rest of the time he is out in the country visiting farms.

There are many farm problems on which the county agent might do you some good. Give him a chance to talk them over with you, make his office your headquarters on Saturday. Write him letters. Read, every week, the Farm Bureau Notes that he writes for "The Avalanche," the only paper published in Crawford County.

If you do not take the paper how can the county agent tell you every week the things he is trying to pass around? Some of these weeks you will miss in one of the county agent's articles, something that will be worth several years subscription. If every farmer in the county would take the Avalanche all the farmers and the county agent could talk together every week. Try it.

SUPREME COUNCIL SESSION OPENED

ALLIED STATESMEN MEET IN PARIS TO SETTLE PROBLEMS OF EUROPE.

U. S. AMBASSADOR ATTENDS

France and England Sharply Divided On Big Issues—England Favors Giving Silesia to Germany.

Paris.—The Anglo-French conflict of viewpoints regarding Upper Silesia was put squarely before the Allied supreme council at its history-making session here late Monday when Sir Cecil Hurst presented the British side of the controversy.

Sir Cecil insisted that the industrial triangle of Upper Silesia be given to Germany, together with whatever surrounding territory experts deemed fit.

France holds a diametrically opposite view and a vote of the council is expected to be taken on the matter. This will be the first big test of the relative strength of the French at British influence in the decisions of the supreme council.

Mr. Loucheur, French minister of reconstruction, replying to Sir Cecil for France, said that the British proposals would give nine-elevenths of Silesia to Germany.

There are divergent views between Great Britain and France on practically all of the issues to be decided. France wants to send reinforcements to Upper Silesia at once. Great Britain holds that this is not necessary. Great Britain wants to remove the Rhineland penalties and to withdraw the Allied troops from Dusseldorf and adjacent territory. France is opposed. France supports the Turkish nationalists in the Near East; Great Britain supports the Greeks.

After Premier Briand had made a speech of welcome to Ambassador Harvey, Premier Lloyd George spoke, welcoming America's return to the supreme council in the name of the Allies.

It is understood that the United States favors the Anglo-Italian solution of the Upper Silesian question in preference to that advocated by France.

ANTI-BEER BILL PASSED

Senate Favors Curb on Physicians—Up to Conference.

Washington.—Despite an unexpected display of "wet" strength the senate, by a vote of 39 to 20, Monday passed the Campbell-Willis bill prohibiting physicians from prescribing beer as medicine and otherwise amending the Volstead prohibition enforcement act. Wet forces, however, succeeded in mustering such a formidable array of votes that they were able to compel the adoption of amendments, one of them so important as to call forth vehement protests from "dry" leaders that it would nullify the Volstead law.

This amendment was offered by Senator Stanley of Kentucky. It is designed to put an end to some of the practices of prohibition agents which have been the cause of wide-spread complaint. It provides a fine of $1,000 and imprisonment for one year for prohibition agents or any government employee engaged in enforcement of prohibition or any other law who searches or attempts to search property or the premises of any person without securing a search warrant.

Whether the amendment will survive in conference with the house remains to be seen, but the "wets" are determined to make a hard fight for it.

FORCES GIRL TO TAKE POISON

Mother in Fit of Despondency Then Kills Self.

Detroit.—Believed to have been despondent because of an argument Sunday which resulted in a separation between her and her husband, Mrs. Minnie Dobson, 26 years old, 1247 Twelfth street, Monday forced her 8-year-old daughter, Winona, to drink carbolic acid and poured enough of the poison down her own throat to cause death immediately.

Mrs. Maude McKeercher, living in the apartment below that occupied by the Dobsons, discovered the mother and daughter clasped in each other's arms. The mother was dead. Winona was unconscious. She was taken to Receiving hospital, where she died several hours later.

MICHIGAN FARMERS ON TOUR

Hundreds in Organization Take Trip Through Neighboring States.

Adrian, Mich.—More than 25,000 Michigan farmers Monday assembled at the George D. Horton farm, Fruit Ridge, southwest of Adrian, for a program preliminary to the start Tuesday of an automobile tour through Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

This year's tour is the development of an idea that had its inception at Battle Creek three years ago when a number of farmers from that community went on a motor trip to the northern part of the state.

Nero's Golden Palace.

The golden house was the palace of Nero in ancient Rome, which occupied the valley between the Palatine and Esquiline, and connected the palaces of the Caesars with the gardens of Maecenas. It was built after the great fire of 64 A. D., and was so large that it contained porticoes 2,800 feet long and inclosed a lake where the colosseum now stands. The forecourt contained a colossus of Nero 120 feet high.

Ann Arbor—Vernon F. Hillery, of Tulsa, Okla., has been appointed business manager of the Michigan Daily, student newspaper at the University of Michigan, succeeding Edward Priests, Mr. Clemens, who was recently drowned.

Three Rivers—Union carpenters of Three Rivers have voluntarily lowered their scale of pay from $5 cents an hour to 75 cents an hour. This was done to give the home builders an opportunity to get skilled workmen at a very reasonable price to build their homes.

Port Huron—George Loyham, Kenosha township farmer, has confessed to robbing the private bank of C. C. Peck and company at Goodells. He did not attempt to open the safe, but rifled the petty cash drawer, securing $35. He broke open the rear door of the bank with a buggy axle.

Kalamazoo—William Nastos, proprietor of a local restaurant, word received here says, was drafted into the Greek army, when he visited that country this summer to wed his sweetheart. He was forced into the army, word says, as he and his bride were at the railroad station to return to America.

Saginaw—Indemnity bonds of jitney bus operators were fixed at $5,000 per passenger with a maximum of $25,000 of liability for one accident by the city council. This decision was reached over the opposition of Mayor B. N. Mercer, who held out for $10,000 for each passenger with a maximum of $50,000.

Clawson—Because its treasury is low, the village of Clawson has been obliged to do without fire protection at least for the present. A campaign to bring about purchase of adequate equipment was launched some time ago, but the village council decided against the expenditure on the ground it hasn't enough money.

Paw Paw—A wave of crime has suddenly broken out in Van Buren county. Among the places entered have been the homes of Fred Smith and Mrs. William Jacobs, of Arlington township. There were taken from the former a suit of clothes, a watch, and pocketbook. At the Jacobs home the thieves stole a gold watch and chain.

Flint—J. C. Harvey, a farmer near Crago Crossing, claims to have the most patriotic hog in the United States. The animal is a two-year-old freak. It is red, white and blue and has no ears. The hog now weighs 363 pounds and through its national emblematic colors and earless head has attracted much attention throughout the country.

His body was found by Representative Samuel J. Smith, a close friend, who forced a rear door and discovered Richards' body on the floor of his bedroom where it had laid at least 15 hours.

Owosso—Five thousand dollars in Liberty bonds and certificates of deposit, which disappeared mysteriously from the home of E. E. Bunting, retired farmer, re-appeared just as mysteriously. Bunting found them lying on a bag of grain in his granary when he went to feed his chickens. He at first paid no attention to the package but later the corner of a yellow bond caught his eye and he investigated.

Charlotte—Sheriff Glenn Dilley, of Eaton County, is beyond the law unless a circuit judge appoints someone to arrest him. It has been discovered following an effort to serve summons on him in a civil suit growing out of the sale of a threshing machine, Sheriff Dilley waived his right to refuse to appear as a witness because no summons had been served on him. He declared that under the law the only officer authorized to serve summons on a sheriff or to arrest him are coroners and Eaton County has no coroners.

Bozette—One drowned and three had narrow escapes when trying to put a sail on a canoe in Pine Lake. Eugene Dorenburg, aged 10, went down to his death, while Carl Vincent was only saved by the heroism of Mrs. William Summers, who heard the cry for help and plunged into the water after him when he was exhausted. Mrs. Summers is an expert swimmer and succeeded in bringing Vincent ashore while the two other boys who were in the boat swam ashore. The body was recovered two hours later.

The tablet contained the names of the battles in which her husband participated. Mrs. Custer is a former resident of Monroe.

PROBES CAUSE OF ADRIAN ESCAPES

GOVERNOR TOLD GIRLS HEARD RUMOR THAT HAIR CUTTING WOULD BE RESTORED.

26 RUNAWAYS IN SIXTY DAYS

Average Before Abolition of Severe Punishment Said to Have Been Two Each Month.

Lansing—Governor Alex J. Groesbeck has begun a thorough investigation of the reported collapse of discipline at the Adrian School for Girls, 26 escaping within 60 days.

The reason assigned for the inmates leaving the home was that the board had forbidden hair-cutting as one form of punishment for infractions of the rules.

The governor will confer with Mr. T. Murray, secretary of the board of corrections and charities, and, if necessary, with the board of control.

It was said that the school authorities had uncovered a plot whereby 26 girls had planned to leave the school.

Many of those who escaped during the last month were apprehended.

"The acting superintendent of the school denies that the abolition of hair-cutting as a means of punishment was the reason for the wholesale escapes," said the governor.

"I have been told that the superintendent has the situation well in hand. This does not mean there will be no investigation. I shall confer with Mr. Murray as to conditions at the school and will also take the matter up with the board."

The governor said he had been informed that the girls escaped because they feared that with the leaving of Miss Hazel Bailey this month, as superintendent, the old forms of punishment would be restored.

The order forbidding the superintendent to clip the hair of returned runaways was made July 24. Before the time the regulation was abandoned, the average number of escapes from the institution was two per month. This week's runaways brought the average for the last two months to 13 a month.

Under the present ruling, which came from a woman member of the board, institutional authorities are powerless to cope with the problem of escaped inmates. The girls, after their return, are placed in what is known as the "demoted cottage" but this carries no special terrors as the girls there are not deprived of regular recreation and they get the same food as is served at other cottages.

Officers say the girls know no punishment is in store for them in the event of their capture and three returned runaways, who were gone from the institution two days before their capture, brazenly defied the officers, upon their return to "do anything." Since the order became effective the "demoted cottage" has been filled to capacity.

ERIN PROPOSES SECOND PARLEY

Rejects Britain's Proposal But Would Negotiate Principle.

London—The British government's peace proposals were laid before the Dail Eireann, which rejected them unanimously, but it is willing to negotiate on the principle of government by consent of the governed. Eamonn De Valera says in his reply to Mr. Lloyd George, the British prime minister.

The letter proposes that Great Britain and Ireland appoint representatives with plenary powers to negotiate details on this principle.

"We have not sought war, nor do we seek war, but if war be made upon us we must defend ourselves, and we shall do so," said Mr. De Valera's letter. "We long to end the conflict between Great Britain and Ireland," he adds.

DAWES TELLS OF BUDGET PLANS

Announces New System to Coordinate Executive Control.

Washington—Virtual completion of the co-ordinating machinery under which executive control will be exercised over the ordinary business transactions of the Government in the interest of economy has been announced by Director of the Budget Dawes. Executive orders were issued by President Harding, Gen. Dawes said, creating a Federal purchasing board and a Federal liquidation board, with the system of corps area co-ordinators of purchase and supply and a surveyor general of real estate already created, would constitute the new machinery.

K. of C. to Reward Patriotism.

New York—The Knights of Columbus announced that the organization would make an annual award for patriotism, similar to the Nobel prizes in science and humanities. It will be bestowed upon a person in the United States, not necessarily a citizen, who in the judgment of a committee "shall have done the deed or spoken or written the word that will stand out as the greatest contribution of the year to the promotion of the American spirit of patriotism."

Actual Bombing Feats Delayed.

Washington—The anticipation of the army air service of having the old U. S. S. Alabama for bombing tests may be shattered, in view of economies now being practiced by the navy. Unofficial estimates of the cost of fitting the battleship for tests in accordance with army requests, run from $200,000 to $1,000,000. With a view of stimulating actual war conditions, army flyers have asked the navy to have the Alabama put in first-class sea-going shape.

BRINGS MESSAGE OF PEACE TO "RED ARROWS"

JOHN J. PERSHING.

Detroit—About 5,000 veterans of the Thirty-second division were in the city for the annual reunion of the Red Arrow men when General John J. Pershing, commander-in-chief in war time, and general of the army in peace days, arrived to take part in the ceremonies. The reunion was held August 27-28-29 and 30. General Pershing was escorted to the D. A. C. where he was the guest of a joint committee representing the Thirty-second division and the Detroit citizen's committee.

PEACE WITH GERMANY SIGNED

Pact Guarantees U. S. All Rights Accorded at Versailles.

Washington—The treaty of peace with Germany, negotiated by President Harding and Secretary of State Hughes in lieu of the rejected treaty of Versailles, was signed in Berlin Aug. 25 and made public by the American state department shortly afterward.

The treaty explicitly provides the United States shall be entirely dissociated from the League of Nations, is not bound by any action that the league has taken or may take in the future, and it binds Germany to all the important reparations and economic clauses, the disarmament provisions and other essential obligations insofar as they affect the United States, which were specified in the Versailles treaty as approved by the Allied and associated powers other than the United States.

The treaty must be ratified by the senate before diplomatic relations are resumed.

MELLON DOOMS MEDICINAL BEER

Won't Issue Prescription Ruling Pending Final Action On Bill.

Washington—Beer, as a medicine, was doomed by the treasury unless congress after recess should fail to enact the Willis-Campbell anti-beer bill.

In conference with internal revenue Commissioner Blair, Secretary Mellon decided that the regulations already drawn which would permit physicians to prescribe a case of beer at a time with no limit on the number of prescriptions, should be held up by the treasury pending determination of the medicinal beer question by congress.

PANAMA MOURNS U. S. RULING

Republic's Flag to Be Flown at Half Mast for 30 Days.

Panama—President Porras signed a decree, which declares the republic of Panama in mourning for one month. He ordered that the flag be displayed at half mast on all public buildings. This action was taken in consequence of the award to Costa Rica of disputed territory along the frontier and the decision of the United States not to delay Costa Rican occupation of the district.

CUT RATES TO HELP BUILDERS

Freight Reduction on Materials May Provide Work for Idle.

Richmond, Va.—Railroads in this state have been ordered to reduce and put into effect a reduction of 25 per cent in the rates for building materials of all sorts, including highways, in order to increase business and to provide employment for the hundreds of laborers and others now out of work. The railroads acted in full co-operation with the project.

Would Extend Coolidge's Duties.

Washington—The Vice-President would take over all duties of the President when the latter is away from Washington for more than 14 hours under a bill introduced by Rep. Kissel (Rep.), New York. In event both the President and Vice-President were out of town the Speaker of the House would assume powers of the President. The bill would make it unlawful for the President at any time to absent himself from the territorial jurisdiction of the United States.

Some Pet, This Cub Bear.

U. S. AIRSHIP ZR-2 WRECKED BY BLAST; FORTY-THREE DEAD

Dirigible Plunges Into River at Hull, England.

COMMANDER MAXFIELD DIES

Of Forty-Nine Officers and Enlisted Men in Air Craft's Crew All but Six Perished When Machine Burst Into Flames—Four Leap in Parachutes.

London, Aug. 20.—America's $2,000,000 airship, the ZR-2, Titanic of the air, is a wreck in the River Humber near Hull. Eighteen of the twenty-nine Americans who were to pilot her across the Atlantic to the United States are believed to have perished.

Of the forty-nine officers and enlisted men in the huge dirigible's crew, twenty-eight of whom were British, all but six lost their lives when the ship exploded over the city of Hull at six o'clock in the evening.

Twelve bodies have been recovered, among them that of Commander Louis H. Maxfield of Washington, D. C., who was in command of the ZR-2. Air Commander Maitland of the British air forces, who piloted the dirigible and was Britain's foremost pilot, also was killed.

Cause of Disaster Unknown.

None of the six survivors has been able to advance a theory of the cause of the disaster. The ZR-2 had been in the air 35 hours on her trial flight. She got out from Hlowden early in the day and was prevented by a storm from landing that night.

The next day she had been cruising about in further tests, her commander planning to moor the giant craft at Pulham, in Norfolk. The dirigible was floating easily over Hull in plain sight of thousands of people on the streets, when suddenly the crowds saw a flash and heard a tremendous explosion.

The concussion shook buildings and broke windows in Hull. The airship burst into flames and appeared to break in two. While the panic-stricken populace rushed to and fro to escape the debris, the 700-foot bag, laden with heavy engines, great gasoline tanks and cabin equipment, plunged, burning, into the river.

As it touched the water, another explosion occurred. Many of the victims were hurled to death after the balloon fell. Eyewitnesses saw at least four men leap in parachutes. The six rescued were all delirious.

Eye-Witness Account.

A description of the ZR-2 disaster was given by James Phipson of Birmingham, an eye-witness.

"I was just opposite Victoria pier when it happened," said Phipson. "I saw the beautiful silver ship sweep majestically toward the city of Hull. It was about 1,000 feet high and was sailing along on an even keel.

"I could see the propellers turning slowly as the ship disappeared into a cloud bank. After two or three moments she emerged again and I was almost struck dumb to see the shining craft gliding in the sun suddenly break in two pieces. A second or two later, when the sound of the terrific explosion was heard, the flames were shooting upward and the black smoke was already settling below the ship.

"The airship seemed to stand still for a second or two as the two pieces gradually broke apart, descending slowly, the nose portion at first seemingly under control.

"Then I saw portions of the gondolas falling away. The nose portion fell on a mud bank in the Humber, which was at low tide. After hurrying its nose in the sand, that portion of the ship continued to burn fiercely.

"There was no sign of anyone on that part of the ship.

"The tail end fell in the middle of the river half a mile away and was also blazing.

Three Drop in Parachute.

"When the nose landed there were two further explosions. The gasoline tanks burst with the impact.

"I saw three parachutes leave the front part of the ship as it broke. It looked to me as if three men were hanging to one of the parachutes, but I could not see where they landed.

"As far as I know only two men survived. They were Mechanic Bateman and Lieut. A. H. Wann, who commanded the ship. I saw Lieutenant Esterly's body taken away. It was all burned and charred. Wann was terribly injured, but Bateman was able to walk. Both Wann and Bateman were rescued from the wreckage in the Humber."

Was Ready for U. S. Trip.

The ZR-2 was to have left Pulham for the United States within ten or twelve days.

The dirigible cost $2,000,000. In addition the United States government expended $4,000,000 in the construction of a huge hangar near Lakehurst, N. J., and in sending a crew to England to bring the dirigible home.

More than a month ago a girder of the ZR-2 buckled on a trial trip, and the ship was laid up for repairs.

Frequent delays since then have interfered with intended flights.

Abandon Issuance of Sailing Permits.

New York, Aug. 26.—Custom officials, acting on instructions from the treasury department, abandoned the issuance of sailing permits to citizens embarking for foreign ports. The order ended long waits in line.

Prisoner Tied Hound to Tree.

Spartanburg, S. C., Aug. 26.—Jim Neebit, a negro serving life sentence on the chain gang for murder, escaped. The negro waited until a bloodhound caught up and tied the animal to a tree. He was captured later.

MARKET REPORT

FURNISHED BY U. S. BUREAU OF MARKETS, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Hay

Heavier receipts have caused a $2.63 decline in Timothy prices at principal central western markets. Stock yards buying at Chicago has cleared up surplus. Light country loading reported. Eastern market dull and about even. Alfalfa and prairie prices have also declined about 50c during the week.

Quote: No. 1 Timothy: New York $30.50, Philadelphia $24, Cincinnati $19.50, Chicago $22. Albany $26. Minnesota $23.50. No. 2 alfalfa: Memphis $17.50, Minneapolis $20, Kansas City $23. No. 1 prairie: Minneapolis $14.50, Chicago $17, Kansas City $12.

Feed

Wheat feeds, especially bran, continue weak. The demand for stock feeds of all kinds remains light. Prices lower. Stocks in dealers' hands light to fair and are fairly steady. Alfalfa unchanged.

Quoted, August 26th: Bran $13.75, middlings $14, Minneapolis white middlings $12.25. No. 1 alfalfa $17.50, Kansas City $20, Kansas City $23. No. 1 prairie: Minneapolis $14.50, Chicago $17, Kansas City $12.

Firestone, as "Porter," Conducts the President to Bunk in the Mountains

PRESIDENT HARDING is shown above inspecting the tent where he bivouacked one night recently while a member of the famous Edison-Firestone camping party which spent ten days in the mountains of Maryland and West Virginia.

He is being conducted to his tent by H. S. Firestone, Akron tire manufacturer, and has placed his personal effects inside.

The president was the guest of Henry Ford, Thomas A. Edison and Mr. Firestone, making the fourth member of a party to which John Burroughs, the aged naturalist, belonged until his death last spring.

The first camp was pitched beside Licking creek, a small stream that trickles into the Potomac river through the Maryland mountains. There they found quiet, fishing, and splendid country roads for horseback riding astride thoroughbred animals that Mr. Firestone shipped from his farm, where he was born and reared, near Columbiana, Ohio.

While in camp the president chopped wood for the kitchen fire, made up his bunk in the converted army tent, and proved himself a model camper.

It does not require a second glimpse of his face to sense the fact that he is glad to get away from the affairs of state to spend a while in camp.

After two days and a night in camp, the president was called back to Washington on official business, the others continuing with their scheduled trip.

STRAY THOUGHTS

(By N. P. Jorgenson.)

By accidental picking up a copy of a weekly, published at Cedar Falls, Iowa, in the Danish language, and with the object in view of renewing my almost disipated acquaintance with my native tongue, I became greatly interested in a therein described cutting up and re-distribution of a seven centuries old estate, originally comprising an area of some 25,000 to 30,000 acres, situated on the Northwest coast of Jutland, in the vicinity of the City "Alborg."

The character and composition of soil found here is perhaps by nature the least favored of any of the peninsula; the surface consists of coarse ocean sands and beneath it an almost solid pavement of stone rolled together by the action of the waves at a period when this coast was still submerged or formed the beach.

But aside from the feature of parceling this vast area of comparatively unproductive land into the possession and occupancy of hundreds of small farmers who by their practical and scientific methods of culture have succeeded in wresting from this unpropitious soil a fairly comfortable living where for centuries before one knightly owner lorded a few serfs sat in starvation. It wasn't this evidence of advancement of civilization, so much as the peculiar and unique method of rating farm lands for the purpose of tax levies obtaining in Denmark which drew my attention. In the past, perhaps two hundred years ago, the Autocratic king of Denmark caused an analysis of soils of the entire Kingdom to be made with a view of stabilizing an estimate of their natural inherited productive-ness.

As the result of this work a unit measure was adopted, called a tun (or Tonde barrel). Haricorn, and this name implied a one hundred per cent capacity for production of corn (barley) from a certain designed area measuring in instances of highly productive soils, perhaps, as small as 6 or 8 acres, and gradually increasing the area composing the unit from poorer soils, in some instances requiring 25 or 30 acres.

That this system of determining the rates of assessment for taxation purpose upon farm lands comes as near being equitable as any can be conceived I think is proven by its standing without change or alteration thru many generations and never criticized except by an occasional "Soll Robber."

Can any substantial argument be raised against the introduction of a similar system in our country replacing the present hit or miss guess work of assessment?

Our farmers should decide this question for themselves for their agricultural lands, if this system doesn't fit the non-agricultural Real Estate in our Country let them have whatever they desire for themselves. But an immense amount of tax money would be saved by the adoption of this system for all agricultural lands. I have been a Citizen of the United States for the space of 56 years, and during that time living and becoming more or less acquainted with the Laws and customs governing assessment of values of property for taxation in several of the States, and I have invariably found the existing unscientific and unjustifiable forms of assessments of property prevalent and practiced in those States to be the everywhere bitterly contested bone of contention.

It is unscientific because it is in the highest degree wasteful in method; it is unjustifiable because, first, it pretends that a uniform standard of estimate of the value of wealth can at any given time be established; secondly, it seeks to impose on certain classes of wealth a double assessment.

Now Mr. Editor, if you consider these stray thoughts of mine deserving of being put in type, sometime "when the spirit moves me" I may return.

A PRONOUNCED SUCCESS.

The uniform success that has attended the use of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy in the relief and cure of bowel complaints, both for children and adults, has brought it into almost universal use, so that it is practically without a rival and as everyone who has used it knows, it is without an equal.

THE IDEAL PURGATIVE.

As a purgative, Chamberlain's tablets are the exact thing required. Strong enough for the most robust, mild enough for children. They cause an agreeable movement of the bowels without any of that terrible griping. They are easy and pleasant to take and agreeable in effect.

When you come right down to reason, what is there to "discount" tires—

THE next time a friend comes to you all excited about some wonderful tire bargain—ask him how much value he ought to get for each dollar of tire money.

It's astonishing that any car owner today should not know all the tire service he is entitled to.

Nor how to check up between the economy of par quality on one hand—and big discounts, surplus stocks, discontinued lines and retreads on the other.

For two years U. S. Tire makers have been telling the American people all about tires.

They have laid open the tire business from every angle.

They have always led the fight for better tires.

They have consistently maintained quality first standards with certain economy for the tire buyer.

They have established 92 Factory Branches all over the country. Perfecting U. S. distribution so that you get a fresh, live tire every time you buy a U. S. Tire.

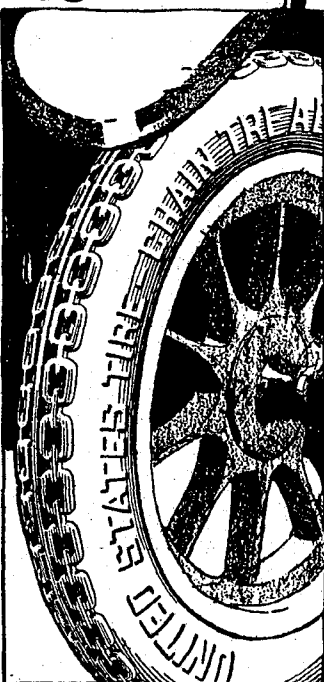

So when a man once decides on U. S. Tires he knows what he is getting in quality—service—economy.

In support of his own judgment he gets the pledged word and reputation of the largest and most successful tire concern in the world.

A sound reason for the fact that you see more U. S. Tires on more cars than ever this year.

"You get a fresh, live tire—every time you buy a U. S. Tire."

RIDERS PROTEST NEW D.U.R. RATE

GLASPIE LAW ABROGATES THE SPECIAL FARES FOR GREENFIELD TOWNSHIP.

RIDERS MUST NOW PAY MORE

New Law Lowers Fares Except for Points Within Five Miles From Detroit.

Detroit.—Changes of rates on interurban lines put into effect by the D. U. R. under the terms of the order issued by Judge Carr, of the Ingham county circuit court, were the subject of protests Aug. 29 from patrons living within five miles of the city limits.

The provisions of the Glaspie act, passed by the 1921 session of the legislature, under which the D. U. R. now is operating, are responsible for the objections.

Before the rate of 1 1/2 cents per mile was ordered into effect by the court, the residents of Greenfield township, through which the Orchard Lake division of the D. U. R. is operated, paid a 5-cent fare with the privilege of six tickets for 25 cents for a ride from the Redford town line to West Grand boulevard. This was under the terms of an old franchise granted the company by Greenfield township.

The Smith railway rate law provided that franchises and rates of fare existing within cities or within districts extending not more than five miles from the city limits were not to be changed under the terms of that act, so the old franchise fare was continued.

The Glaspie law, however, makes no such provision, therefore while its effect is to lower rates of fare on the greater part of the D. U. R. system, it abrogates the special rates enjoyed by certain communities adjacent to cities.

Under its provisions riders on the Orchard Lake division of the D. U. R. now pay the city fare to Turner road and the straight 1 1/2 cent per mile rate from there on, except that the law permits the company to charge a minimum fare of 5 cents for short rides up to five miles.

Thus the patrons of this line are obliged to pay 10 cents straight fare to any point beyond Turner road as far as the town line road.

While the residents of Greenfield township are paying more for their ride, patrons of this division who go beyond the town road are benefitting by the changed rate.

The new rate to the Twelve Mile road is 6 cents, while the old rate was 10 cents. The old fare to Redford was 13 cents and has been reduced to 10. Farmington Junction was 24 cents and has been reduced to 18, while the former fare to Farmington was 27, it is now 20. The fare to Northville has been cut from 41 to 31 cents. Orchard Lake station, which was 42, is now 32, and Pontiac, which was 55, is now 41 cents.

SUITS FILED AGAINST RESORTS

State Takes First Step to Close "Wet" Roadhouses Near Detroit.

Lansing.—If suits in equity filed Aug. 24 against three roadhouses in Wayne county and one in Macomb county are successful, this weapon will be used in a campaign to close a score of roadhouses in the neighborhood of Detroit, where it is alleged liquor is being sold, according to the attorney general's department.

Hearings on the four suits have been set in the Wayne county courts for September 8. If a finding favorable to the state is found, the places may be closed as "public nuisances" and kept untenanted for a year. The suits were started at the request of Roy C. Vandercok, state commissioner of public safety.

TAX BILL GETS RIGHT OF WAY

Tariff Will Be Sidetracked When Senate Reconvenes Sept. 21.

Washington.—Definite assurance that the tax bill will be reported to the senate on the day it reconvenes, September 21, was given by Senator Penrose, chairman of the finance committee following a conference of Republican members of the committee at which a program was agreed upon. The committee will begin consideration of the bill in executive session September 1, a re-arrangement of tariff hearings making it possible to sidetrack the tariff at that time.

ENTER PLEA OF "NOT GUILTY"

Trial of Mrs. Obenchain and Arthur Burch Set for Nov. 1.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain and Arthur C. Burch have entered their formal pleas of "not guilty" to the indictment charging them with the murder of J. Belton Kennedy.

Judge Reeve set the case for Tuesday, November 1, and ordered that the question of separate trial be argued in court by the attorneys before that date.

NO SUBSTITUTE OFFERED.

Say what you will about druggists offering something "just as good" because it pays a better profit, the fact still stands, that ninety-nine out of a hundred druggists recommend Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy, when the best medicine for diarrhoea is asked for, and do so because they know from what their customers say of it, that it can be depended upon.—Advertisement.

Indigestion

DO YOU KNOW that indigestion can be cured, permanently cured, so that you can eat any kind of food that you crave? It has been done not only once, but in almost every case when Chamberlain's Tablets are used. An instance: Mr. J. Pominville, Stillwater, Minn., who had spent over $2,000.00 for medicine and treatment was permanently cured by these tablets.

NOTICE OF LETTING.
Notice is hereby given, that I, Alfred Hansen, Clerk, of the Board of Grayling Township, Crawford County, State of Michigan, will on the 10th day of September, 1921 at 8:00 p. m. cease to take bids for the building of two abutments with wing walls and the placing of concrete floor on steel bridge which shall be erected on State Street in the Village of Grayling.

Said job is to be let on a yardage basis, all reinforcing and metal to be furnished by the township.

Plans and specifications may be examined at the office of Township Clerk, Grayling, Mich.

Any person desiring to bid, must deposit with the Township Clerk a certified check for $200.00 as a guarantee that if his bid is accepted, he will enter into a contract for the performance of the work. If he fails to do so, the amount deposited shall be forfeited.

Contracts will be made with the lowest responsible bidder, giving adequate security for the performance of the work in a sum then and there to be fixed by the Township board, they reserving the right to reject any or all bids.

Dated Aug. 30th, 1921.
M. A. Bates, Supervisor.

WORN NERVES.
Nervous troubles, with backache, dizzy spells, queer pains and irregular kidneys, give reason to suspect kidney weakness and to try the remedy that has helped your neighbors. Ask your neighbor?

Mrs. W. S. Chalker, Grayling, says: "My back ached and when I stooped over I was in constant misery. If I did the least bit of work sharp pains used to hurt me and toward the end of the day I could often feel my back weaken. The next morning my back would feel stiff and sore. I became nervous and irritable. I was often dizzy headed and couldn't rest well at night. My kidneys were weak and I felt run down. I saw in the paper how Doan's Kidney Pills were helping others so I decided to give them a trial. A few boxes which I bought at Lewis' Drug Store cured me."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Chalker had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.
